I have brought in this amendment just to bring to the notice of Government and this House that there is a possible confusion or doubt as to the class of Insurers who have ceased before the commencement of the Act, but who, at the same time, wish to continue and another class of people who have ceased to work in that direction but who later on enter into this new class. Just to apply the provision only to people who have actually ceased business of the kind and continue the business after the commencement of this Act, I have thought that the amendment was necessary.
